Mircea Mocanu is currently heading the IOM Office in Romania. He is actively involved in the implementation of practical solutions to assisting migrants, victims of trafficking and stranded people seeking emergency consular assistance.

Before IOM, Mircea’s professional experience included assignments with UNDP, EC and the FCO in Central Asia, Middle East and Eastern Europe, where he successfully carried out socio-economic interventions in line with the MDGs.

Mircea is a strong advocate for inter-institutional cooperation and communication amongst governmental, non-governmental and private-sector stakeholders. As coordinator of all activities for IOM in Romania he has often used the convening power of this UN Agency to mobilize relevant resources to help out those most in need of support and assistance either directly or through sustainable policy recommendations.
